

The Final Countdown:
A Notice to all KSS Wrestling Veterans

By: Teiowí:sonte (Thomas Deer)

On Thursday February 13th, the Kahnawake Survival School will once again host the prestigious GMAA Wrestling Championships. The KSS wrestlers are currently gunning for their 14th straight GMAA conference title and are now preparing for the final countdown. Earlier this week, KSS coach David Canadian informed me that his squad is ready and determined to give their all once again in front of the home crowd. He also relayed to me an interesting notice put out to all veteran wrestlers of KSS.

Firstly, it would be greatly appreciated if KSS wrestling veterans can help setup and prepare the gym for the tournament at 1:00pm on Wednesday, February 12th. On this same day, the KSS wrestlers will have their final workout and official weigh in. Again, all KSS veterans are encouraged to stay and help out in this final sweat massacre of the GMAA season.

Also for this year's GMAA Championships, the call is put out to all the KSS wrestling veterans to be on hand for a unique act of encouragement. This year, it is requested that former wrestlers of KSS gather at the tournament to create a "human tunnel" of inspiration, through which the KSS grappling squad will walk through on their way to the mat. Such an act of encouragement will surely rile up the home crowd and motive both old and new Kahnawake champions. Let's not let them down!

Again, as a reminder for all Kahnawa'kehró:non, the GMAA Wrestling Championships will take place on Thursday, February 13th at the Kahnawake Survival School gymnasium; beginning at 9:30am. With a reputation composed of over 50 champions and 13 straight GMAA titles, this year's tournament promises a long day of action and glory. Hope to see you there!
